western rebellion was worthy of more attention than it has as yet received from any of the English historians; that it was primarily religious rather than agrarian, and that it represented a large number of people militantly opposed to the policy of Edward VI and actively loyal to the old Roman forms. The study will be of value not only to students of English political history, but to those looking for further information in regard to the attitude of the English towards the Prayer Book.

HENRY B. WASHBURN.

EPISCOPAL THEOLOGICAL SCHOOL, CAMBRIDGE.

IN THE SERVICE OF THE KING. A PARSON'S STORY. JOSEPH B. DUNN.
G. P. Putnam's Sons. 1915. Pp. x, 158. $1.25.

Autobiography is always interesting. This book is pre-eminently so, because the emphasis is laid not upon the events of the author's life but upon their bearing on the experience of ministers. It is full of cheerfulness, courage, humor, and deep piety; full of stimulus for those who fish for men.

THE PAPERS OF THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CHURCH HISTORY, Second Series, Volume IV, edited by Professor William W. Rockwell, and published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1914 (pp. xxii, 215; $3.00), contains, in addition to Reports of three Meetings, Addresses and Papers of permanent value. Among these are "Servatus Lupus, a Humanist of the Ninth Century," by the late president, Dr. Samuel M. Jackson; "The Mediæval National Church," by the president, Professor J. C. Ayer, Jr.; "The Stigmata of St. Francis," by C. H. Lyttle; "John Huss," by D. S. Schaff; "The Relation of Wessel Gansvoort to the Reformation," by E. W. Miller; "Luther and Toleration," by J. A. Faulkner; "The College of Cardinals and the Veto," by H. B. Washburn; "Religious History of the Negroes in the South," by R. C. Reed.

THE DREAD OF RESPONSIBILITY. ÉMILE FAGUET, Member of the French Academy. Translated, with introduction, by EMILY JAMES PUTNAM.
G. P. Putnam's Sons. Pp. 221.

This brilliant monograph may properly claim the attention both of the psychologist and of the student of society. Its thesis is that the French people, mentally keen and able as they are, are unwilling
